Additional notes:

Returns were calculated net of any charges deducted from this account for advice, transaction and operating charges.

The information in this report is based on trade date and starting in 2020, the market values include accrued income (where available), whereas your custody statement is based on settlement date and accrued interest (where available) only. As such, there may be differences in market value. In addition, the annual report on charges and compensation is reported on a settlement date basis and as a result there may be differences between the total amount of charges used to calculate net returns and the total amount of charges reported in your report on charges and compensation.

Money-weighted rate of return calculation methodology is used to calculate the total percentage return. The total percentage return means the cumulative realized and unrealized capital gains and losses of an investment, plus income from the investment, over a specified period of time, expressed as a percentage, and annualized for periods greater than one year. The method takes into account changes in the value of your investments, dividends and interest you earned, fees that you paid, and the amount and timing of your contributions and withdrawals. This type of calculation is also sometimes referred to as an internal rate of return.

Money-weighted rates of return are only calculated from January 1, 2016 onwards.

In addition to this Annual Investment Performance Report, you may also receive an Annual Charges and Compensation Report. Contact your Investment Advisor / Portfolio Manager, as applicable, for details.

If you opted for the charges attributed to one or more of your other accounts to be deducted from this account, these other account charges will impact the return for this account. Your rate of return may appear to be understated as charges from your other account(s) will have lowered the overall market value of this account. If charges related to this account were deducted from one of your other accounts (referred to as a "Charge Account"), the charges attributed to this account will have no impact on the rate of return for this account. Consequently, this account may have an overstated rate of return as the account market value has not been reduced by the amount of applicable charges. These charges, however, will impact the return on the Charge Account.
